

Do high-achieving schools share certain attributes? ESC Region 11's Elevating Success Program works with school staff to build on their efforts for success by tweaking the systems and processes that they engage in daily. It focuses on systems that use common language and highest-leverage school practices to support strategic improvement and growth.

Program experts utilize the Effective Schools Framework, an exciting tool developed around national research about what makes high-performing schools excellent. Based on this research, five common areas were identified as being essential in high performing campuses, and each area includes essential actions that describe what the most effective schools do to support powerful teaching and learning.

It doesn't matter if you are a D or an F campus, or an A or B campus...healthy schools are always growing and improving.
